NORTH-EAST SARDINIA

P L A C E S T O B E

Called by the Greeks Olbia, "happy", is a pole of access to the island and economic engine of Gallura. In several corners of the city emerge vestiges of the past. Many finds found in the excavations, including a treasure of almost 900 gold coins, are kept in the Archaeological Museum. The Punic-Roman (later Christian) necropolis, which includes 450 tombs, is housed in the museum of the necropolis, which is located at the foot of the altar of the evocative basilica of San Simplicio. The city overlooks a spectacular gulf, which protects the marine area of Tavolara and gives access to the exclusive Costa Smeralda. In the immense Olbiese coast, among the myriad of turquoise coves, you will be spoiled for choice.

The basilica of San Simplicio, in Olbia, is the most important and ancient religious monument of north-eastern Sardinia and a testimony of the spread of Christianity on the island. Cathedral until 1839, parish church since 1955, was awarded the title of minor basilica, in 1993, by Pope John Paul II. It is dedicated to Saint Simplicius, proto-bishop of the city and martyr under Emperor Diocletian, now patron saint of the diocese of Tempio-Ampurias and Olbia.

On the islet Peddone, a few steps from the old port, the archaeological museum of Olbia, the main town of Gallura, exhibits a complete overview of the civilizations developed in Sardinia. To symbolize its position on the sea and the role played by the port city in history, the museum has the shape of a ship moored with circular windows and suspended walkways. The exhibition, dedicated to port and city, traces the Phoenician, Greek, Punic, Roman, medieval, modern and contemporary eras. The museum itinerary is divided into two floors.

In front of the castle of Pedres, near the town of Olbia, a halo of mystery surrounds a place of nuragic burials. In the tomb of Giganti de su mont'e s'Abe (or s'Ape), unlike the thousands of prehistoric burials of its kind, the deceased were buried collectively. In the funeral hall were officiated the sacred rites related to the deceased but here, compared to what happened elsewhere, were not found in the sacred well funeral documents that accompanied the deceased until conjunction with the deity.

It was unearthed in the 1930s, during the search for a water source. It is not by chance that the sacred well sa Testa was chosen by the nuragic civilization that inhabited the territory of Gallura to honor the gods of the water. Today it is a great attraction for lovers of archaeology and, in particular, of the nuragic culture. The ancient sanctuary, dating from the 15th to the 13th century BC, stands at the exit from the town of Olbia and has a structure of less than eighteen meters long, made of granite, trachyte and shale, cut into carefully worked blocks.

Dating back to the eighteenth century, the Church of San Paolo is somewhat the heart of the historic center of Olbia: its dome made with mosaic majolica of various colors, captures attention from afar. The church built on the ancient ruins on which stood the Punic and Roman temple today is one of the most visited places in Olbia. The body, the bell tower, the dome and the chapels make the church take the form of a cross.
